Matthew Bailey is a business attorney who focuses on client service and getting deals done.

Matt represents clients across multiple industries and in all facets of their businesses from formation, day-to-day operations, growth, to exit. Matt's practice includes mergers and acquisitions, commercial transactions, business formation, corporate governance, and corporate general counsel. With experience across a wide array of industries, including home services, construction services, financial services, engineering services, engineering and technology, medical, farming and ranching, and more, Matt delivers results that meet the unique needs of each client. Matt is committed to providing practical, business-oriented advice, focusing not just on legal compliance but also on judgment, insight, maximum value, and minimal risk.

Matt's practical approach to representing clients is grounded in his southern Arizona roots, his practice as in-house and outside legal counsel, and his experience as a business manager and corporate executive.
